

Mervyn Morris

A DAUGHTER'S RECOLLECTION

My father smoked
and smoking killed him
in the end

but I'm remembering
that in my childhood
when he wiped my tears

the magic-making
handkerchief
smelt always
of tobacco